group strength assertive in international relations. Likewise, the BRICS role in Russian foreign policy has played a prominent role. Many universities in Russia have BRICS departments; for example, the BRICS studies center at Ural Federal University. Therefore, that shows how Russia emphasizes the BRICS's role in global politics. Finally, scholar Goergy Toloraya (2015) says that:

> Russia's conceptual documents set the goal of gradually turning BRICS from an informal dialogue forum and instrument for coordinating positions on a limited number of issues to a full-fledged mechanism for the strategic and current interaction. It will radically change the association's position in the system of international relations. BRICS can serve as a locomotive for Russia's geopolitical rise in the 21st Century (in contrast to the downward tendency at the end of the 20th Century).[54]

Likewise, during the 2020 BRICS summit time, Russia underscored several times that Russia's BRICS membership aimed to strengthen multilateral principles in international relations and promote the shared interests of the BRICS members in international fora. It will further develop cooperation in trade, economy, and finance. Besides, it also strives hard to cooperate in the cultural and humanitarian spheres and enhance people-to-people contacts (BRICS Russia 2020a, b). Another significant development during the 2020 Russia BRICS summit was in July 2020, the trade ministers of all the BRICS members adopted an updated ‘Strategy for BRICS Economic Partnership 2025.’ Brazil will review the strategy in 2025. The plan aimed at promoting information exchange enhancing transparency for the development of mutual trade and investment in intra-BRICS members. Further, the project says that the BRICS wants to develop and strengthen customs cooperation, collectively work for the inclusive growth of the BRICS members. The BRICS diversifies trade and investment cooperation and creates favorable conditions for promoting Micro, Small, and Medium Enterprise cooperation and enhancing close collaboration of BRICS business communities (Ministry of Commerce and Industry of India 2020). It will undoubtedly help the Russian federation because the relations between Russia and the West are going toward the nadir level day after day. In such a scenario, the BRICS will play a significant role in keeping Russia's economy intact. One of the largest economies in the world, China,
