economy experienced tremendous change. With this change and the strategy from 1980 onwards, China continued to experience the most sustained per capita income growth rates in global economic history. After taking membership in the World Bank in the late 1970s, the then Deng Xiaoping remarks that:

> We can do it with or without you, but with you, we will do it very fast. (World Bank 2005)[4]

Therefore, after entering the international system, China received immense credit support from various international institutions and countries. Table 4.1 explains how much China received from 1980 to 2000. The data is taken from OECD beyond 2020's CD ROM data, 2002. It says below.

Table 4.1 China's net receipts from all donors between 1980 and 2000 (US$ million)

Donors	1981–1990	1991–1900	1991–1995	1996–1900	1998	1999	2000
IBRD	2391.9	8787.23	3799.17	4988.06	1077.97	788.34	967.99
IDA	2643.26	6488.03	3734.15	2753.88	553.82	406.81	315.48
ADB	75.38	5048.38	1712.15	3335.63	721.59	704.32	700.83
ADB Special funds	9.02	77.99	77.99	0	…	…	…
Japan	13,929.3	21,460.44	17,833.39	3627.05	968.93	−1889.94	−2295.75
EU–EU members	8090.92	29,363.33	12,915.34	16,447.99	3343.27	3187.07	946.46
US	425	7853.27	3312	4541.27	144.85	1802.73	−393.31
Total multilateral	6505.84	21,981.12	10,011.54	11,969.58	2571.66	2072.88	2119.55
Total bilateral	23,271.26	61,185.39	35,947.61	25,237.78	4643.33	3294.09	−1576.42
Other donors	170.38	2987.24	1863.65	1123.59	529.24	143.84	210.84
Total of all donors	29,948.78	86,153.9	47,822.95	38,330.95	7744.23	5510.81	753.97

Source OECD Beyond 2020 CD ROM data, 2002 (Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), "Economic Outlook 95—Long-term Baseline Projections Dataset", 2014, https://stats.oecd.org/Index.aspx?DataSetCode=EO95_LTB)

Likewise, other institutions like ADB, ADB Special funds, Japan, E.U Member countries, US multilateral and bilateral institutions, and several other donors provided immense financial support for China's development.