8 to 9, Russia's Federal Security Council Secretary Patrushev, and China's State Councilor Dai Bingueo, held the 8th round of China–Russia Strategic Security Consultation meetings. At the Summit's sidelines, he met the CPC Central Committee Secretary Xi Jinping and State Councilor Meng Jianzhu.

On February 25, Russian Deputy Minister Arkady Dvorkovich met Chinese Vice Premier Wang Qishan and co-chaired the Russia–China Energy Cooperation Committee in Beijing as part of regular meetings again. Later, from August 19 to 21 Russia's Deputy Prime Minister Dmitry Rogozin and Chinese vice Premier Wang Yang met at Harbin and co-chaired the Russia–China 'Prime Minister's Regular Meeting Committee.' On September 24, Russia's Deputy Prime Minister Golodets and Chinese vice Premier Liu Yandong met in Guilin and held the Russia–China Cultural Cooperation Committee meeting. Russian Deputy Prime Minister on October 15 met Chinese vice Premier Yang Gaoli in Beijing and held the meeting of the China–Russia Energy Cooperation Committee. On October 18, Russian Deputy Prime Minister Rogozin and Chinese vice Premier Wang Yang met at Xian in the same month. They held the meeting of the Russia–China Prime Ministers Regular Meeting Committee (ibid.).

On April 17, 2016, China's Russian Defense Deputy Minister Anatoly Antonov, while giving an interview to Xinhua, underscored the importance of security cooperation with China and stated that Russia will always work together with China to safeguard regional peace and international security. He also emphasized that its missile defense system in the Asia–Pacific Region presented a direct threat to Russia and China (Huaxia 2016). However, by 2015, the United States had increased 368,000 military personnel in the Asia Pacific Region, including 97,000 who were stationed in the West of the International Date Line. The military personnel deployed by the United States in the Asia Pacific region accounts for more than 50 percent of its total military forces overseas (China Daily, November 25, 2016). In February 2016, according to the US Department of Defense reports, the US$583 billion of the defense budget in the fiscal year of 2017 had been proposed (ibid.).

So it indicates that Washington was expecting a military confrontation with the second and third largest nuclear powers, Russia and China. On February 4, 2016, the International Committee of the Fourth International published a report, observing that the Pentagon had increased its defense budget to build the US military against Russia in Europe. It is projected to