BRIC, and since then, the BRIC has become BRICS. Likewise, the fourth Summit was held in New Delhi, India. The fifth Summit was held in Durban, South Africa, in 2013. The sixth Summit was held in Fortaleza, Brazil, in 2014. The Seventh Summit was held in Ufa, Russia, in 2015, and the eighth BRICS summit at Goa in 2016. The ninth BRICS summit took place in Xiamen in 2017, China. The tenth BRICS summit was held in Johannesburg in 2018, South Africa. The eleventh BRICS summit took place in Brasilia in 2019, Brazil, and the twelfth BRICS summit was supposed to be held in Russia in 2020 due to the Covid-19, but it got postponed and held in virtual mode. The thirteenth BRICS summit happened in New Delhi, India.

During the 63rd UN General Assembly convened in 2008, the then Brazilian president Lula Da Silva stated that Southern world countries have stepped up their efforts to design a multipolar world order, such as India, Brazil, and South African initiatives. The BRIC countries asserted the alliances with the traditional developed world and stressed that there would be no competition between the North and South over global order (Lula Da Silva 2008). As far as current trends in the East and West's relations are concerned, they are always in a problem with one or the other. Nonetheless, change is inevitable, and BRICS will remain a balancing factor for future international relations between the southern and Western world (Grace Guerrero 2011).

On the one hand, BRICS plays the role of a united forum for resistance against Western control. On the other hand, BRICS was a beacon for Russian and Chinese foreign policy interests. Every year, the BRICS meetings discuss new and existing global issues. For instance, in 2012, in New Delhi, the theme of the meeting was ‘BRICS Partnership for Global Stability, Security and Prosperity,’ dealing with the Iranian Nuclear issue and Afghanistan (Ministry of External Affairs of India 2012). In the Durban Summit in South Africa in 2013, for instance, BRICS declared that the international community should reject further militarization of Syria because the problem could be resolved through formal dialogues (Department of International Relations and Cooperation South Africa 2013). The recently held UN resolutions on the Ukraine crisis to condemn Russian aggression on Ukraine and siege the military operations, China and India abstained from all the voting. It indicated that both China and India took positive neutrality.
