context the role of BRICS has been defining factor of emerging international relations due to its global approach. Hence China would like to use the BRICS platform to enhance its position in world politics as all the countries share similar views of global politics. While meeting with BRICS foreign ministers, China president Xi Jinping on June 19, 2017, argued that the BRICS countries should push forward with international order to develop in more fair and global demand. And Xi prompted them to call for joint efforts to create a new golden decade for the BRICS bloc (An Baijie et al. 2017). Further, China is mulling to expand the BRICS group and make it more 'BRICS Plus' for greater South-South cooperation. Because, on March 8, 2017, foreign minister of China, Wang Yi, during the press conference for the fifth session of the 12th national People's Congress at the Beijing, China, 'BRICS countries are like five fingers, short and long if extended, but a mighty fist if clenched together.' During this, Yi underscored the point that China would work with other members of the BRICS to make it 'BRICS Plus' for world peace and development (Huaxia 2017). However, the critical part of China's intention to make the BRICS as 'BRICS Plus,' is consideration of the other major powers of the group. Notably, India and Brazil. Otherwise, the future of the BRICS will be a question mark. With this trend, BRICS has played a positive role in Chinese foreign policy objectives. However, Ukraine crisis-like incidents will have a more significant impact on the BRICS progress. Because one of the critical players of the BRICS, Russia, is directly involved in the crisis. Therefore, it is tough for the BRICS members to stand and take positions.

Russian Perspective: Self-Adoption of BRICS Model

Russia believes that its national government would eventually adapt to the new system of global governance that BRICS also upholds. It would ultimately contribute to making global institutions like the IMF, World Bank, WTO[15] (World Trade Organization), UNSC[16] (United Nations Security Council), as well as the international financial system more fair, stable, and efficient (Toloraya 2014). According to the new Russian Foreign Policy Concept (2013), Russia attaches excellent prominence to the sustainable manageability of global governance. For that, collective
