However, in between the Covid-19 pandemic hit the world in 2020. During this time, the world economy got shattered due to the Covid-19 induced lockdowns by various countries. It has disrupted the lives of all nations and communities. It is estimated that the virus reduced global economic growth in 2020 to an annualized rate of −3.4 to −7.6 percent, with a recovery of 4.2–5.6 percent projected for 2021. International trade is estimated to have fallen by 5.3 percent in 2020. However, it is projected that the global economy will grow by 8% in 2021. The human costs in terms of lives lost will permanently affect global economic growth. It has increased the poverty levels of the people, lives upended, careers derailed, and increased social unrest. It is said that 95 million people may have entered into extreme poverty in 2020, with 80 million more undernourished than pre-pandemic levels (The US Congress Report on Covid-19 impact on global economy 2021).[6] Further, 8.8 percent of international working hours were lost in 2020 and which is equivalent to 255 million full-time jobs, an amount that is four times greater than the job losses during the 2009 global financial crisis. It is estimated that the pandemic had pushed 119–124 million people into poverty in 2020. Apart from that, aviation passenger traffic declined by 60 percent in 2020. The Human Development Index recorded its first drop since 1990 due to the pandemic.[7]

The IMF's 2021 'World Economic Outlook' predicted that in Table 2.6.
