

tones to crisp, herb-inspired top notes. It is a highly theatrical mix where Gucci wallcoverings, liquid metal finishes, richly layered marbles and translucent onyx smash against a high-gloss partition to dial up the tactile drama. To maximise the mood, the lighting is calibrated to behave like a gallery curator, casting soft glows that shift throughout the day to strip back the hidden depth of each texture.

TOP TIP

"Bathrooms should engage all the senses through light, texture, proportion and materiality. The goal should always be to create spaces that feel timeless and deeply personal."

Disha Subramanium
interior designer at her eponymous firm

TREND ALERT The design world is staging a major rebellion against the sanitised, cookie-cutter aesthetic of generic hotel-style luxury. Today's discerning homeowners are treating the bathroom as an immersive canvas for fierce personal narrative, leaning into hyper-customised spaces anchored by high-octane colour gradients, provocative textures and art-first details.