Technology-driven digital evidence, cyber law and data privacy—the legal profession is in flux, and Lloyd College is meeting every challenge with specialised, future-ready education

By SHELLY ANAND

In a legal world being reshaped by artificial intelligence, digital evidence, data privacy regulations and alternative dispute resolution, law schools face a challenge of preparing students for tomorrow's legal landscape. At Lloyd Law College, Greater Noida, the answer lies in reimagining legal education itself. Established in 2003, the college—which has over 6,500 students across its BA LLB and LLB programmes—produces graduates who are equally comfortable in courtrooms, corporate boardrooms, arbitration centres and public service roles. Ranked No. 19 in 2022, the college is at No. 8 this year—the most improved law college.

What sets Lloyd apart is its belief that law cannot be taught in isolation. It has invested heavily in experiential learning—moot courts, mock trials, arbitration simulations, legal drafting workshops and client counselling exercises. According to Dr Mohd. Salim, senior director and dean, the college's 25-plus skill development centres—including the Lloyd Institute of Mediation & Arbitration, Moot Society, Trial Advocacy Centre, Forensic Science Centre and judiciary prepara-
