STUDENTSPEAK

"Hindu College for me is the very embodiment of life, ambition, passion and a microcosm of Bharat. It has pushed me to read a lot and the faculty in their own ways has guided me to master myself and inspire others"

HARSH THAKUR

GURUSPEAK

"As more students take up dissertations and independent research, Hindu College is helping students move beyond classrooms and become active producers of knowledge through new academic platforms and mentorship"

PROF. ANJU SRIVASTAVA, Principal, Hindu College

tion of academic learning with global opportunities through the Office of International Programmes (OIP). In the past year, students represented the college at the Asian Undergraduate Summit hosted by the National University of Singapore, with their projects securing international seed funding. The college has also expanded partnerships with institutions such as Waseda University, Japan, and the University of Warsaw, Poland, while programmes such as the Aspire Leaders Programme and the Study Abroad Forum are creating new pathways for international exposure and learning.

Research opportunities are also expanding significantly at the college. Faculty members are leading major projects in areas such as food security, sustainable development, governance and regional development, funded by agencies such as the ICSSR (Indian Council of Social Science Research). Students participate as research assistants, gaining experience in fieldwork, policy analysis and academic research.

Technology and innovation are another important focus area. A key initiative is the AI Training and Innovation Lab, which will serve as a platform for workshops, training programmes, conferences and interdisciplinary projects. This will help arts students gain exposure to emerging technologies that are reshaping fields such as public policy, governance, media, economics and social research.

As these initiatives expand, Hindu College is positioning itself as a place where undergraduate education extends well beyond the classroom, connecting scholarship with leadership, innovation and public impact. ■
