

2026, bringing smaller clinics, diagnostic centres and dispensaries under a common regulatory framework to strengthen quality standards and patient safety across the state.

By expanding educational opportunities and improving access to quality healthcare, Bihar is investing in the foundations of long term social and economic development.

Women at the Centre of Development: Safety, Livelihood and Economic Empowerment

Women's empowerment has emerged as a central pillar of Bihar's development agenda, with initiatives spanning safety, livelihoods and financial inclusion.

To strengthen policing, the Home Department has deployed 1,500 scooters and 3,200 motorbikes exclusively for women police personnel across the state. While the scooters improve mobility in congested urban areas, the motorbikes enable faster response on highways and across larger jurisdictions.

The statewide Police Didi initiative has further strengthened community policing by creating a direct interface between women police officers and local communities. Through regular visits to villages, panchayats and educational institutions, Police Didis encourage women and girls to report grievances, spread awareness on cyber safety and legal rights, and make policing more approachable. Economic empowerment has received equal attention. Having already mobilised more than 1.40 crore women into 11.03 lakh Self Help Groups across all 38 districts, the Bihar Rural Livelihoods Promotion Society, better known as JEEViKA, is now extending its successful rural model into urban areas.

The expansion of Didi Ki Rasoi, operated through the state backed Annapoorna Jeevika Food Products Company Limited, has taken community kitchens beyond hospitals to police training centres, government offices and other public institutions.

Urban Self Help Groups are also managing subsidised crèches, enabling more women to join the workforce. At the same time, municipal corporations are awarding sanitation, waste management and hospital laundry contracts directly to SHG federations, creating sustainable livelihood opportunities.

To improve financial inclusion, trained Urban Bank Sakhis are helping informal sector workers access Mudra loans, micro credit and the PMFME Scheme, ensuring that women become active participants in Bihar's growing economy.

Transparent Governance for a Modern State: Reforms That Improve Public Services

Alongside development projects, Bihar has introduced a series of governance reforms aimed at making administration faster, more transparent and technology driven.

A major step is the implementation of the Bihar Registration Rules, 2026 and the Bihar Stamp (Service Provider License and E Stamp Supply) Rules, 2026, which will make property registration completely paperless across the state, reducing delays while improving transparency and revenue collection. The Prohibition, Excise and Registration Department has also digitised registration deeds dating back to 1990 and made them available in a searchable online format, enabling citizens to access records online and enhancing transparency, convenience and Ease of Living.

The government has further strengthened these reforms by extending the home registration facility to all senior citizens aged 80 years and above, enabling them to complete property registration from the comfort of their homes through mobile registration units. This facility is intended to improve Ease of Living and make public services more citizen-centric. The new digital registration system also enables people residing outside Bihar to complete property registration through an online application. Registration documents will be delivered through WhatsApp and e-mail, while GIS-based verification and online land validation will make transactions more secure, transparent and reliable, reducing disputes and enhancing public confidence in the registration process

The government has also transferred 1.85 acres of land adjoining Patna Airport to the Airports Authority of India to support future airport expansion.

In the transport sector, the One Time Traffic Challan Settlement Scheme, 2026 offers vehicle owners an opportunity to clear traffic challans pending for more than ninety days through a rationalised settlement process. The government has simultaneously withdrawn motor vehicle tax exemption on new government vehicles purchased against a Certificate of Deposit, while continuing the benefit for private vehicles to encourage the scrapping of older, more polluting vehicles.

Reinforcing its commitment to clean administration, the government has decided to abolish the Bihar Vigilance Investigation Cadre, integrating its officers into the Home Department and Police to streamline anti corruption efforts. Together, these reforms reflect an approach that combines administrative efficiency with greater public accountability.
