INDIA'S BEST UNIVERSITIES OWE THEIR SUCCESS TO A PEDAGOGY THAT IS IN TUNE WITH THE TIMES

By KAUSHIK DEKA

AT JANTAR MANTAR THIS MONTH, AND AT SIT-INS THAT SPREAD FROM DELHI TO MULTIPLE LOCATIONS ACROSS THE COUNTRY, students protested an education system they say has stopped working for them. Their grievances vary by state and institution—rising fees, faculty vacancies, compromised examinations, delayed academic calendars and placement promises that evaporate by the time they graduate. Underlying them is a deeper anxiety that the degree at the end of the educational pipeline no longer guarantees the opportunity, mobility or security it once appeared to promise.
