fee structures in the country (Rs 10 lakh annually), and is attached to a 900-bed teaching hospital that treats patients free of cost.

"We show the way, the world follows," says Ramakrishnan Raman, vice-chancellor, pointing to how Mujumdar launched a business school at a time when few institutions were thinking along those lines. Symbiosis, he says, also has a history of thinking beyond conventional models. It introduced innovation and entrepreneurship programmes in 2015, when the government was still developing its approach to startups and entrepreneurship.

Its MBA in Innovation and Entrepreneurship does not offer placements, yet it receives around 12,000 applications for just 60 seats at a time when MBA programmes are typically judged by their placement records. Raman claims that
