

THE CJP AGENDA

- A nationwide outreach programme, 'Kya bolti public', will be launched next month to gather feedback on issues affecting people
- With over 60% of Indians under 35, youth unemployment will be made a nationwide issue
- Focus on leaks and malpractices in PSC exams, especially in states like Bihar, MP, UP and Maharashtra, where the youth pin their hopes on government jobs
- Remedying the situation where education from the primary school level itself is barely affordable. Hitting the coaching class-private school nexus. Focus on reviving government-run schools
- Improving the poor working conditions of gig workers, getting them social security
- Work towards its goal of a developed India as envisioned by Ambedkar, Gandhi and Nehru

CJP'S MANN KI BAAT

Flanked by his two co-convenors, Dipke said after the meeting, "Some 65 per cent of India's population is under 35, but no one wants to talk about the issues they face in areas like education and unemployment...the government acts as if these issues do not exist. For them, the only issue is Hindu vs Muslim." Describing the 'kya bolti' outreach as a "stakeholder consultation", Dipke emphasised that the time has come for the government to listen to the "mann ki baat" of the youth. "The core frustration of Gen Z is that they are dismissed, ignored, that no one asks them about their expectations, dreams and hopes for the country," he added. The pan-India outreach programme, he said, was aimed at "bringing back the culture of public listening".

Speaking to INDIA TODAY, Dipke pointed out how the Jantar Mantar protests had received support not just from NEET aspirants upset at the paper leaks, but also from those disillusioned at irregularities in other public examinations. "The reason we are going to Bihar is that most
