Q. The last time someone tried to sexually harass you, how did you respond?

Nothing; the perpetrator was camouflaged or fled	6
Nothing; felt too numb, nervous, embarrassed or horrified to react	9
Nothing; because for some reason, reacting to it would have done more harm than good	9
Indirectly or subtly conveyed dissent	6
Reacted openly & directly confronted the perpetrator	13
Sought help and confronted the perpetrator with the help of family, friends, colleagues etc.	5
Reached out to helpline numbers or police and registered a complaint	5
I haven't experienced this	43

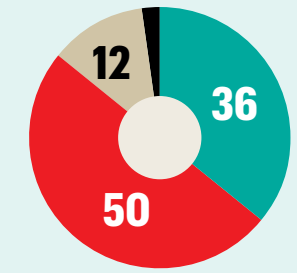

Q. If a stranger in a public space touches you or behaves inappropriately without your consent, what are you most likely to do?

Nothing; the perpetrator mostly gets camouflaged or flees	6
Nothing; the experience becomes too numbing, embarrassing or horrifying to react	9
Nothing; because for some reason, reacting to it is likely to do more harm than good	10
Will indirectly or subtly convey dissent	8
Will react openly and directly confront the perpetrator	37
Will seek help and confront the perpetrator with the help of family, friends, colleagues etc.	8
Reach out to helpline numbers or police and register a complaint	16

Q. How often do you change your behaviour or dress, or avoid certain places or times to prevent potential harassment or boundary violations in public?

Q. Have you experienced pressure from someone senior—boss, teacher, senior colleague, mentor—for late-night meetings, personal messages, or received "special attention" that made you uncomfortable?

33% of respondents say they have experienced sexually suggestive comments or jokes that offended them