Clockwise from left: Chef Vicky Cheng, Executive Chef and owner, WING; Botan Shrimp with Chiu Chow sauce; Chef Guillaume Galliot, Executive Chef, Caprice; Chef Suveg Kavatkar, Chef De Cuisine, Caprice; Chef Robin Faye, Senior Sous Chef, Caprice; A special table at Caprice; Crab Laksa with confit Egg and Microgreens; Alaskan King Crab; Prestige caviar from La Maison; Razor Clam with yunnan chilli

CAPRICE
(NO 35 ON ASIA'S 50 BEST LIST; 3 MICHELIN STARS)

The interiors boast a Versailles meets glossy lifestyle magazine vibe that is opulent, aspirational, and unapologetically indulgent. Three shining Michelin stars, dazzling crystal chandeliers, panoramic harbour views ensure luxury that is distilled into three unforgettable hours. The tasting menu created by chef Guillaume Galliot is a work of art: Perfectly cooked Brittany scallops come with a thick sauce that is both exquisite and cosy. The iconic king crab laksa boldly combines Malaysian heat with French elegance, while the caviar beginning defines indulgence. Expect surprises at every course, perhaps a glistening pigeon dish with luxurious chestnut puree and notes of Sichuan pepper, or the kind of smoked eel that makes you rethink your entire relationship with freshwater fish. However, if you truly want theatricality at the table, look no further than 'The Cheese Event', calling it a mere 'cheese plate' feels almost disrespectful. Imagine a colossal wooden raft laden with Fromage so indulgent it could break up nations. You're handed countless variations, creamy Brillat-Savarin, pungent Époisses, perhaps some obscure chèvre whose name escapes you but whose taste will haunt you in the best possible way. It's less of a course and more of a ceremonial feast, leaving you torn between surrendering to gluttony or capturing photos for posterity.

WHERE: Four Seasons Hotel, 8 Finance St, Central

COST: Tasting menus start from ₹36,000 per person

WEB: https://www.fourseasons.com/hongkong/

USP

Michelin starred French brilliance with unexpected, globe-trotting twists to complement stunning harbour views.

