VANCOUVER

Romance of the Rails

Gliding past gorgeous turquoise lakes, ice fed rivers and snow-capped peaks, the two-day journey from Vancouver to Banff on the country's most luxurious trains, the Rocky Mountaineer, unfolds like a moving picture postcard. Choose the most iconic itinerary, the 'First Passage to the West', a 965-km epic ride into the Canadian Rockies. After boarding at Vancouver, the train snakes through Fraser Valley before breaking journey at Kamloops, for an overnight hotel stay. The following day explores even more gorgeous landscapes winding past Glacier National Park, across the stunning Stoney Creek Bridge before entering the Rocky Mountains, while storytellers share fascinating tales about the Gold Rush, abandoned towns and indigenous communities. Gold Leaf passengers occupy glass dome coaches and dine in an elegant restaurant car, while Silver Leaf passengers travel in single storey cars with picture windows and meals served on their seats.

www.rockymountaineer.com
Starts from $2,974 CAD per person (approx. ₹2 lakh)

