

At the heart of Lucerne's autumn glory lies Lake Lucerne which is best experienced onboard a boat.

LUCERNE IN AUTUMN: THE PERFECT GATEWAY TO CENTRAL SWITZERLAND

A picturesque city renowned for its lake, mountains, varied culture & scrumptious food, Lucerne is a must-visit autumn destination.

Mountains, medieval streets, a stunning crystal clear lake, beautiful gardens, scrumptious food….In conversations, Lucerne is often referred to as one of Switzerland's most gorgeous summer city. True. But Lucerne, that sits in the heart of the country, is at its glorious best in autumn. The Lucerne Lake, flanked by high peaks and sprinkled with picture-perfect villages, is still busy with boats, the Old Town still alluring with its vibrant buildings and cobblestone streets, and the cafes brimming with locals and travellers who flock for scrumptious food. With summer receding and autumn tiptoeing in, the light gets softer, the air embraces a slight chill, and the trees along the promenade begin to turn copper and gold. Lucerne is breathtaking in autumn! To Lucerne's beauty, add the joy that the city does not require over-planning. Start with the obvious landmarks: the Chapel Bridge, Europe's oldest covered wooden bridge, featuring 17th-century triangular paintings inside and an iconic water tower; the Old Town renowned for its cobbled streets, painted building facades; Musegg Wall with its nine historic towers that are a testament to Lucerne's fortified past… Just follow the streets as they bend back towards the lake.

The city of Lucerne and Lake Lucerne simply belong together. Not surprisingly, the lake remains the centre of the experience. After a stroll through the city, experience the lake from onboard a boat - a cruise with the Lake Lucerne Navigation Company is the best option. A leisurely lunch cruise offers the chance to enjoy a delicious meal while taking in the season's golden foliage, ever-changing views of the surrounding mountains, and picturesque lakeside villages reflected in the crisp, clear waters. Lake Lucerne is also the gateway to some of Central Switzerland's most iconic peaks, with regular boat connections to Mount Pilatus and Mount Rigi. Lake Lucerne is characterised by a landscape that changes from one bay to the next, as such you'll have million photo ops. These scenic journeys seamlessly combine time on the water with mountain railways and cable cars, making the lake not just a destination but the starting point for exploring the region's spectacular alpine landscapes. Lucerne also works beautifully as a starting point for the mountains. From here, the journey towards Andermatt feels natural rather than ambitious. Andermatt brings a quieter, more alpine finish to the trip. Set in the Ursern Valley, Andermatt impresses with its diversity. With eight Alpine passes, the variety of tours around Andermatt is unique. You can also hike through the Schöllenen Gorge or along the Four Springs Trail. In autumn, the trails are calmer, the air is sharper, and the surrounding peaks give the landscape a sense of scale that stays with you.

For those looking to stay longer, The Chedi Andermatt offers a refined alpine retreat, combining sweeping mountain views, warm interiors, exceptional dining and a spa designed for unhurried afternoons. Nearby, Radisson Blu Hotel Reussen, Andermatt provides a contemporary and welcoming base, ideally positioned for exploring the village, the surrounding mountains and the wider region. For guests seeking greater independence and space, Andermatt Alpine

Andermatt has a rich culinary culture that reflects both traditional Swiss flavours and regional specialties from central Switzerland.

Apartments offer stylish, fully equipped accommodation that brings the comfort of a private residence to the heart of the Swiss Alps. Together, Lucerne and Andermatt are must-do autumn destinations. One gives you the lake, the old town and the stories; the other brings in the mountains, clean air and a slower rhythm. Central Switzerland in autumn is not about doing more. It is about being more.

Spend an evening by the Chapel Bridge, Europe's oldest wooden bridge, & do not miss Swiss Museum of Transport.
