

SUSPENDED LEGACY

Breguet

Classique Tourbillon Sidéral 7255

Created for Breguet's 250th anniversary and unveiled in June 2025, the Sidéral honours the complication Abraham-Louis Breguet patented in 1801 by taking it somewhere the maison had never gone before. This is Breguet's first flying tourbillon, supported from below, with sapphire components concealing its bridge and drive system so that the cage appears suspended over an aventurine Grand Feu enamel sky. The 38mm Breguet-gold case keeps the spectacle civilised. Manually wound calibre 187M1 beats at a traditional 2.5Hz and provides 50 hours of power, while hand-guilloché Quai de l'Horloge decoration enriches the reverse. Limited to 50 pieces, it treats heritage as a starting point rather than an instruction manual.
