

Poolside at The Postcard Hotel in the Durrung Tea Estate

of four teas and understand the nuances of each. The next morning, he takes me on an enlightening walk through the Durrung Tea Estate. I get to see a few of the estate's 900 pluckers at work, where they chant the catchy 'eti koli, duti paat' (one petal, two leaves) catchphrase to describe how they're plucking the tender leaves. Inside the factory, I get to understand the fascinating yet very technical process of withering, oxidising, drying and sorting to create CTC black tea.
