

SPATIAL ALCHEMY
(clockwise from left) Black and white wardrobe anchors the bedroom; a Murphy bed steals the show; a swing sofa adds whimsy to the living space; the architects carved the temple from stone

As architects, we viewed this 8,000 sq ft duplex in Worli, Mumbai, not just as a project, but as a creative playground where we could explore the intersection of scale and intimacy. Our vision was to craft a residence that speaks with a quiet clarity of purpose. A space where every room is intentionally shaped with both freedom and focus. Through a collaborative synergy with the homeowners, what began as a structural challenge evolved into a deeply personal narrative, gracefully balancing expansive volumes with the soulful touch of a private sanctuary.

A Tale of Two Levels

The home is intelligently bifurcated to manage its vast footprint. The lower floor, grounded in fresh Baroda green stone, is designed as the social heart, a space for communal gatherings and high-end entertaining. As one ascends the staircase, a stunning connector featuring metal and cane detailing by Wicker Story, the mood shifts. Warm wooden flooring takes over the upper level, signalling a transition into the private realm of bedrooms and family dens.

