Entertaining with Character

The formal living area sets a refined tone near the entrance, anchored by a generous L-shaped sofa from Studio Nor11 and a Masiero Nappe c10 chandelier. However, it is the informal living area that captures the home's playful spirit. Here, a sculptural custom swing takes centre stage, flanked by a bespoke brass bar that glows with metallic detailing extending to the ceiling. Even the utility is elevated; a totem-like column conceals technical necessities while acting as a piece of vertical art.

Say a Prayer

A sliding door reveals a meditative temple, where river stones reminiscent of Rishikesh float within a custom metalwork frame. This serenity is juxtaposed against the bold guest bedroom, which embraces a monochromatic blue-out aesthetic. In a touching nod to heritage, the curtains depict the family's ancestral village, proving that modern design can still hold a mirror to one's roots.

Culinary Conversations

A glass brick wall acts as a luminous veil between the lounge and the dining room. In the lounge, the iconic B&B Italia Camaleonda sofa invites lounging, while the dining area is defined by a custom brass table and Flos Skynest pendant lights. The attention to detail extends to the powder rooms; one features a sculpted step basin, while another opts for matte black surfaces and graphic pegboard walls.

Whimsy and Function Upstairs

The children's wing is a testament to individuality. One room, inspired by a future pilot, features cloud-printed curtains and terracotta accents, while his brother's room uses ombré greens and a custom medal-display. The upper-level den is the ultimate transformer, acoustic panels and modular furniture, which allow it to pivot from a poker room (with a hidden cabinet table) to a mirrored dance studio in seconds.

Details in the Everyday

Perhaps the most striking conversation starter is found in the lift lobby. A name board, meticulously crafted from over 16,000 modular switches, turns a mundane electrical component into a graphic work of art. From the 18th-century charm of Cole & Son wallpapers to the modern silhouettes of Jaipur Rugs, this Worli duplex proves that when function, emotion and intention converge, a house truly becomes a home.

For us, this project was an exercise in play and pause, a journey to prove that a home of this magnitude can still feel intensely personal. By weaving together handcrafted elements, bold material shifts and a clear architectural intent, we have created more than just a duplex; it's a living, breathing environment where architecture and personal narrative exist in perfect harmony.
