

MANY WORLDS Clockwise from left, L.N. Tallur's 'Interference'; K. Ramanujam's 'My Dream World'; Raqib Shaw's 'When the Thing with Feathers Turned Red (after Tintoretto)'

EXHIBITION ▼

SOUTH ASIAN CANVAS

KNMA, IN ASSOCIATION WITH CHRISTIE'S, IS EXHIBITING SOME ICONIC ARTWORKS FROM ITS COLLECTION IN LONDON NEXT MONTH

As part of Christie's summer exhibition series, the Kiran Nadar Museum of Art (KNMA), New Delhi, is collaborating with Christie's London for a major institutional exhibition. The Meeting Ground: Scenes from the KNMA Collection offers a rare glimpse into the museum's growing collection, with a slice of its 15 years of exhibition history. It will bring together works across modern and contemporary practices alongside folk and indigenous artistic expressions from South Asia.

"The exhibition is inspired by how artists' personal experiences influence their politics of art, and the ways their art holds the power to shape the institutional," says Akansha Rastogi, lead curator of the exhibition and associate director of visual arts, KNMA.

Structured through a series of unfolding 'scenes', the exhibition begins with dialogues and contestations between modernists such as M.F. Husain, S.H. Raza, Jeram Patel, K.C.S. Paniker, K.G. Subramanyan and K. Ramanujam, tracing artistic centres in India from the 1950s to the present. This historical focus expands into a scene that offers performative metaphors, in which artists such as Neha Choksi, L.N. Tallur and Simryn Gill reflect on how individuals and institutions hold forms of listening and mark-making to keep memories agile.

The show begins with dialogues and contestations between M.F. Husain, S.H. Raza, Jeram Patel, K.C.S. Paniker, K.G. Subramanyan and K. Ramanujam

Another strand foregrounds protagonists such as Zainul Abedin, Anwar Jalal Shemza, Zarina Hashmi, F.N. Souza and Bani Abidi, whose practices span multiple homelands and shared histories. Interwoven with these movements are masters of indigenous traditions, such as Jangarh Singh Shyam, Jivya Soma Mashe, and the collaboration between Gauri Gill and Rajesh Vangad.

"At a moment of growing international interest in the region, The Meeting Ground brings the extraordinary depth and diversity of the Kiran Nadar Museum of Art collection to London...," says Damian Vesey, international specialist, South Asian Modern and Contemporary Art, Christie's. ■

—Neha Kirpal

On view at Christie's King Street, London, from Jul. 16 to Aug. 21