

1 Heritage Revived

The Vintage Ornamental Elegance collection from Maspar draws inspiration from architectural pillars and ornamental scrollwork. The range avoids bold excess in favour of quiet sophistication. The palette features a restrained mix of deep blues, muted purples and warm beiges designed to create an intimate, lived-in feel. From quilted bed covers to towel sets, the collection offers a complete styling solution.

2 Artisanal Beginnings

It's not easy to balance modern aesthetics with traditional artisanal techniques, but architect and designer Romit Savla makes it look so easy. Take for instance his new collection, Aarambh by Objects by Soch, the retail arm of Soch Design Studio; the range features seating, tables and cabinets crafted from natural wood with delicate brass accents, emphasising warmth and understated luxury. The collection is defined by soft curves and meticulous joinery.

3 Bold Folds

FIG Living deepens its origami-inspired roots with the Fold Series, a collection defined by restraint and material intelligence. Moving beyond functional lighting, these pieces span table, floor and pendant lamps. The aesthetic focuses on clean geometry and diffused light, using premium linen and hand-pleated origami paper to soften a room's atmosphere. In the evolving landscape of Indian design, the Fold Series offers a sophisticated statement of interior intention, earning its place through silent, deliberate beauty.
