Restrained Grandeur

Explore a unique home that blends the earthy authenticity of Wabi-Sabi with the refined, quiet elegance of contemporary Neoclassical design

By UTKARSHA MAHAJAN

Photographs by PHX INDIA; Stylist THE SOLE CONCEPT

MIXED AND MATCHED
Earthy greens, warm wood tones, natural materials and tactile textures can be found in the living spaces (above) and the bedrooms (right)

Wabi-Sabi and Neoclassical Luxury are not contrasting design philosophies, they simply celebrate beauty through different lenses. One embraces authenticity, nature and imperfection, while the other values timeless proportions, refinement and quiet elegance. At Verdant House, we set out to prove that these two sensibilities can coexist, creating a home that is deeply calming yet undeniably sophisticated.

Inspired by the quiet philosophy of Wabi-Sabi, the home embraces natural materials, muted tones, tactile textures, and an understated sense of beauty. Every surface feels authentic, every corner invites you to slow down and nothing tries too hard to impress. Earthy sage greens, warm wood tones, textured finishes, filtered natural light, and soft curves create an atmosphere