

Something for Everyone

The collection covers a wide range of moods. Some pieces offer a grand, regal feel, using motifs inspired by old stone windows looking out onto festive processions. Others are much more intimate, bringing the bright, casual joy of family gatherings directly onto the fabric. The collection also includes patterns inspired by vintage ornamental umbrellas, alongside a cosy suite designed to feel like the safety and comfort of a grandmother's home.

Soul of Sophistication

Vintage archival florals are redesigned to fit clean, modern spaces. The rich, traditional colour palettes catch your eye without crowding the room. This partnership stands out because it focuses heavily on classic Indian craftsmanship, turning everyday products into functional art. The fabrics are deeply tactile, ensuring that the physical comfort matches the emotional warmth of the designs.

Ultimately, this debut changes how we style our living spaces. It encourages homeowners to view domestic textiles as true expressions of personal identity and cultural pride rather than simple utilities. By bringing poetry and nostalgia into everyday items, the collaboration turns a house into a space for personal storytelling. It serves as a reminder that while houses are built of brick and stone, homes are made from the stories we choose to keep alive.

DREAM TEAM
Neha Gupta Bector, Chairperson, myTrident with Karan Torani (previous page); the collection (this page)