Latest teaching methods, collaborations with top foreign B-schools and a commitment to research have propelled the School of Business at Galgotias University, Greater Noida, to the position of the most improved college for BBA programmes. With over 6,700 students enrolled in various undergraduate, postgraduate and doctoral programmes in business and management, the School of Business buzzes with energy. The school is a member of the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB), is accredited by the National Assessment and Accreditation Council (NAAC) with an A+ grade, and has forged international collaborations to provide a global perspective to students. Partnerships with top institutions such as Purdue University, US; SRH, Germany; Kedge Business School, France; Goethe University, Germany; and Northern Illinois University, US, result in student and faculty exchanges, joint research projects and exposure to international business practices. The school has a diverse range of programmes, such as an integrated MBA (BBA with MBA), BBA in marketing and automobile management, BBA in business analytics, MBA with dual specialisation and MBA in digital marketing.

According to Professor Jagannath Mohanty, Dean, School of Business, "Research acquires a significant place in the academic ecosystem of the School of Business. Our faculty members have published in top journals, including those in the prestigious ABDC A*. The research is mostly interdisciplinary and co-authored by top researchers in the world."

While the School has made management education affordable to many, it has not come at the cost of quality. For instance, most courses have a technology-based multiplayer simulation. Similarly, it is the only institute in India to follow the novel 'ac-
