

PRASHANT PANJIAR

CINEMA

ENTER THE KHANS

Times were changing, romance was in the air, and in came a flotilla of new dreamboats, all dew-fresh and dimpled, changing the look and feel of Hindi cinema

IT wasn't the best of times at the movies, not by any stretch. The year 1985 kicked off with a monster hit, RK's Ram Teri Ganga Maili, and one will be hard-pressed to find any memory from that one except for cat-eyed Mandakini's wet sari turn under a waterfall. Takeaways from the period bring three things to mind—grand romance, family dramas and the stirrings of a new K-K-K boy clan priming to take over Bollywood's reins. The Bollywood royalty Khans, Aamir (Qayamat se Qayamat Tak or QSQT) and Salman (Maine Pyar Kiya), were the first