

"It's not enough to honour the past; we must reinterpret it for an India that is younger, more global, and more imaginative than ever before," shares Amanda. "Our responsibility is to build communities where families don't just live but thrive multi-generationally."

Amanda Puravankara, Executive Director

precast technology far ahead of the industry, the Group consistently adopted innovation as its instinct. From digital transformation to building the country's first e-commerce platform for home buying, Puravankara has often moved where the industry would eventually follow. Imbibing innovation has been the culture.

Nurturing Prosperous Communities

Across five decades, Puravankara's philosophy has remained unchanged: to build not just structures, but experiences rooted in joy, trust, and human connection. Every project, from Purva Venezia in Bengaluru which brought a flavour of Venice, to Purva Oceana in Kochi, which redefined luxury waterfront living, to the award-winning Purva Atmosphere in Bengaluru, known for its immersive wellness-centric design, carries the same commitment to quality and customer-first thinking.

One of the Group's flagship developments, Purva Zenium in Bengaluru, set a benchmark in tech-enabled living, integrating smart features long before they became industry buzzwords. Provident Sunworth, the largest township in Kengeri, stands as a testament to the Group's first-mover vision, with Puravankara not just developing a project but shaping an entire locality. Their foray into plotted development introduced a fresh perspective to the category, with Purva Tivoli emerging as a defining benchmark in premium plotted living.

By strategically segmenting its brands, the Group makes quality living attainable for all, reshaping the home buying landscape with greater inclusion.

For Puravankara, each project has been a tributary: distinct, purposeful, and feeding into the larger river of its vision.

Shaping an Enduring Legacy

Rivers carve landscapes not through force, but through persistence, patience, and deep respect for the terrain. Similarly, Puravankara's growth has been grounded in values that have remained unchanged for 50 years: transparency, innovation, responsibility, and a relentless customer focus.

The Group's financial discipline, strengthened by its commitment to transparency and robust corporate governance, has earned it consistent stakeholder trust. Its emphasis on modern construction technology continues to set new benchmarks for speed, sustainability, and safety. And at its core, a people-centric culture ensures that every homeowner, employee, and partner remains at the heart of its journey.

The Next Generation Making the Change

A milestone like 50 years is both a celebration and an inflection point. With Ashish Puravankara taking the helm as Managing Director, the Group is gearing up for an era driven by technological sophistication, design thinking, environmental consciousness, and next-gen project management frameworks.

Alongside him, leaders like Amanda Puravankara are helping articulate a refreshed global identity, one that marries the Group's rich legacy with its for ward-thinking ambitions.

Meandering Towards the Global Stage

The next decade will see Puravankara evolve into a sharper, more global, more sustainable organization. With India transitioning at incredible speed, the real estate sector is positioned to be a vital economic catalyst. Puravankara views this as not just an opportunity, but an obligation.

As India looks ahead toward Viksit Bharat 2047,

"When a customer buys a Puravankara home, they are not buying square feet. They are buying our promise, and that is the weight we carry in every decision."

Ashish Puravankara, Managing Director

The Group's upcoming projects reflect this forward vision:

- Upcoming marquee developments in Bengaluru and Kochi to redefine modern living.
- Purva Aerocity, an integrated urban township planned around future mobility and green living.
- Strategic expansion in West with some marquee developments in Pali Hill, Breach Candy and Malabar Hill.

Puravankara's approach aligns strongly with the national vision, integrating sustainability, technology, and inclusivity into every new development.

Ashish explains: "Real estate will play a defining role in shaping the economic and emotional narrative of Viksit Bharat. Our goal is to contribute meaningfully, through greener buildings, more accessible housing, and communities designed for future urban lifestyles."

The river is widening and gathering speed.

Committed to People, Purpose, and Possibility

A legacy spanning half a century cannot be built by one person alone. It is shaped by every bricklayer and engineer, every architect and designer, every partner, and every family that chose a Puravankara home.

"Celebrating 50 years is not about celebrating ourselves, it is about celebrating every idea, every risk, every setback that taught us something, and every stakeholder who helped us flow forward," says Ravi Puravankara.

This is why the Group's golden jubilee theme, 'The River of Life,' is so deeply symbolic. A river continuously moves forward, learning, carrying dreams forward. It bends but does not break. It grows but never loses its source.

Just like Puravankara.

Embarking on a New Growth Trajectory

Fifty years may mark a golden jubilee, but for the Group, it marks the beginning of an even more ambitious era. One where sustainability is non-negotiable, technology is instinctive, and quality is uncompromised. One where Indian real estate contributes to a stronger, more empowered economy. One where global benchmarks are not inspirations, but outcomes.

As Puravankara steps into its next chapter, one thing remains certain: The river will continue to flow shaping lives, cities, and dreams for the next 50 years and beyond!