THE INSPIRING JOURNEY OF DR. VINOD ANAND

Leading India's Healthcare Logistics with Integrity

From Humble Beginnings to a Healthcare Logistics Leader

Dr. Vinod Anand, Managing Director of Akanksha Global Logistics Pvt. Ltd. (AGL), exemplifies determination, vision, and disciplined leadership. With an academic background in biology and early professional experience as a manager in a nationalised bank, his career path reflects a rare blend of scientific understanding and operational acumen.

Beginning his entrepreneurial journey with a modest capital of ₹80,000, Dr. Anand founded AGL in 1987, at a time when customs clearance procedures were largely manual, complex, and time-consuming. A licensed Custom House Agent (CHA) since 1985, he brought deep regulatory knowledge and operational rigour into the business from the outset—laying the foundation for a company built on compliance and credibility.

At the helm of this journey, Dr. Anand firmly believes that "timely adherence and quality of work are the foremost credentials of any organisation." This philosophy has shaped AGL's culture, reputation, and sustained success in the highly specialised domain of custom house clearance and logistics for medical equipment imports and exports.

Where Work Ethics Define Success

In the logistics sector—particularly healthcare logistics—ethics, accuracy, and timeliness are not optional virtues; they are essential pillars of credibility. Akanksha Global Logistics stands as a powerful example of how an unwavering commitment to ethical practices can transform a modest enterprise into a nationally respected organisation.

Today, AGL has a Pan-India presence, with major operational hubs across Delhi-NCR, Mumbai, Gujarat, Kolkata, Bihar, Odisha, and Punjab. Its prestigious client portfolio includes Medanta Hospital – The Medicity, Apollo Hospitals, BLK Hospital, Paras Hospitals, Dr Lal PathLabs, Fortis Hospitals, Max Hospitals etc —institutions that demand nothing short of precision, reliability, and regulatory excellence.

Over the years, AGL has successfully handled medical consignments exceeding ₹12,000 crore in value, playing a critical role in strengthening India's healthcare ecosystem by ensuring the timely and compliant movement of advanced medical technology across borders.

Quality and Compliance at the Core

The pillars of AGL's growth have consistently been precision, compliance, and client trust. The organisation holds ISO 9001:2008 certification and is accredited with CHA, FFI, and DCCAA memberships—reinforcing its standing as a trusted authority in customs clearance for medical equipment imports and exports.

AGL has evolved from a transactional freight forwarder into a strategic logistics partner, offering advisory support on routing, regulatory documentation, digital customs processes, insurance, and risk management. This consultative approach has enabled clients to navigate complex regulatory environments with confidence.

For Dr. Anand, logistics is stewardship. "Clients trust us with their timelines, reputations, and often with patient lives. That trust is sacred," he affirms.

Healthcare Logistics: Precision with Responsibility

Handling medical and surgical equipment requires meticulous planning, speed, and complete regulatory mastery. AGL's unwavering focus on precision and compliance has become a hallmark of its operations. The company's strong partnerships with key stakeholders such as Indian Customs, Airports Authority of India (AAI), Delhi International Airport Limited (DIAL), and Celebi ensure the smooth, timely, and compliant movement of critical healthcare shipments—setting benchmarks for operational excellence across the logistics ecosystem.

Ethics, Expertise, and Employee Trust

AGL operates with a lean yet highly effective team of approximately 30 professionals, supported by impressive employee retention record—a reflection of its ethical leadership and positive work culture. Dr. Anand proudly notes that AGL ranks among the top three players in its segment, a position earned through consistency, compliance, and enduring client confidence.
