DRIVING DREAMS
STEERING EXCELLENCE
The LALLY MOTORS Story

Founded by Tarsem Singh Lally. Led by Saravdeep Singh Lally and Ripandeep Singh Lally.

There are business success stories, and then there are legacies built with resilience, sharpened through change, and fuelled by vision. The rise of Lally Motors belongs firmly to the second category. From a single dealership in 1997 to a multi-brand automotive empire today, the Group has transformed the way North India buys and experiences cars - earning loyalty, admiration, and national recognition along the way.

On a crisp morning, as we walked into the vast green expanse of LALLY Farms, the Jalandhar farmhouse of Founder Tarsem Singh Lally and his wife Pradeep Kaur Lally, it was impossible not to feel the grounding simplicity behind this scale of achievement. Over tea and laughter, they spoke not as business magnates, but as proud Punjabis who turned determination into destiny.

Back in 1997, when their elder son Saravdeep came back to India after completing his education from Anglia University Cambridge (England), they launched Lally Motors. Saravdeep had a fondness for cars. Honda was new to India — and Punjab was ready for something different. The first showroom opened with more hope than guarantees. But the market responded quickly, and the Lally name began to carry weight.

"It started as one dealership," Tarsem recalls, "but the belief was always larger."

"It started as one dealership," Tarsem recalls, "but the belief was always larger." What followed was a period of growth that changed the automotive landscape in the region.

Today, Lally Motors represents trusted global brands comprising Volkswagen, Honda (as Prestige Honda) and Kia (as Lally Kia) — spread across Punjab, Haryana and Chandigarh. Their network includes 20 outlets and a flourishing certified pre-owned dealership in Jalandhar, ensuring they

