active involvement, I share my knowledge as a 'thought leader', supporting the team when they are risk-averse or need an entrepreneurial mindset. You become a guide at the crossroads," he explains.

The Philosophy: Shared Prosperity

Fairness, trust, and shared prosperity form the backbone of his leadership approach. "Power and prosperity have to be shared. Most relationships are emotional connections. We believe in partnership of prosperity," he says. This philosophy drives Trident's culture, fostering entrepreneurial spirit and collaboration among employees.

His advice to young entrepreneurs carries the weight of lived experience: "Always be a giver to society, not a seeker. Be a creator of wealth, not an accumulator of wealth. When you make others rich, it does not mean only in money terms. Rich means culturally rich, mentally rich, financially rich, socially rich. True richness is not defined by a balance sheet alone."

What Comes Next

Trident's next chapter is already in motion. A ₹2,000+ crore expansion in Punjab will upgrade terry towel capacity, strengthen paper capabilities, and build new training ecosystems for rural and semi-skilled youth. It is industrial investment, certainly. But Gupta sees it as something more fundamental: a social architecture project, designed not just to increase output, but to shape livelihoods and lift community aspiration. This is how he has always approached growth, not as an end in itself, but as a platform for creating opportunities that ripple outward.

As an MP, his focus runs parallel: strengthening industry, uplifting rural employability, increasing women's workforce participation, and shaping policy that combines growth with dignity.

myTrident carries this philosophy into homes – with premium bedding, plush towels, soft rugs, and cozy blankets crafted for everyday comfort. What began as a B2B textile giant is now building direct consumer connections, with myTrident growing online and steadily expanding across retail shelves.

Be a creator of wealth, not an accumulator of wealth. When you make others rich, it does not mean only in money terms. Rich means culturally rich, mentally rich, financially rich, socially rich. True richness is not defined by a balance sheet alone.
