

Afghan fighter
November 2001

Photograph by
DILIP BANERJEE

At the receiving end of the full force of American bombing might after the 9/11 terror attack on the US, the Taliban regime crumbled before the Northern Alliance offensive. This young Mujahideen girl, an assault rifle slung over her frail shoulders, did her bit in the dusty battlefields on the road to Kabul