

Water crisis
May 9, 2003

Photograph by
SHAILESH RAVAL

Villagers draw drinking water from a well amidst a water crisis at Limdi in Surendranagar, Gujarat. The image captures the lived reality of drought-prone Gujarat in the early 2000s, when successive weak monsoons and falling groundwater levels pushed rural communities into a desperate search for this life-sustaining element