

India has enormous potential. It has become self-reliant in agriculture on the surface, but we have not developed the resources beneath the earth

India's geology is one of the best in the world. Foreign countries do not want India to open its resources. They prefer the country to remain as a market