

Photograph by BANDEEP SINGH

> I will not stay there [the CM's residence or 'sheesh mahal' renovated by Kejriwal]. This is the public's money and I have no right to spend it for my comfort
>
> You won't need to become old to see a change in the Yamuna. You will be able to see it in three years...you will be able to go on a cruise with us, even do a live conclave on it

LOTUS CAPITAL

PROMISES TO KEEP

In her first major media interaction after assuming office, Delhi chief minister Rekha Gupta spoke on the priorities of her administration before confidently stating that her style of governance would be an absolute departure from that of her two predecessors, Aam Aadmi Party's Arvind Kejriwal and Atishi. Speaking at the India Today Conclave, Gupta touched on all the burning issues of the day, including Delhi's air pollution crisis and the rejuvenation of the Yamuna river. "You won't need to leave Delhi this winter," Gupta promised the audience, explaining her plans to tackle the air and water pollution simultaneously. She promised visible change within months and said she was focusing on the adoption of electric vehicles and taking extensive steps to prevent stubble burning.

Gupta promised clear outcomes on the Yamuna rejuvenation within three years. The BJP leader told the audience: "In three years, you will join a cruise with us; and you will attend a live meeting about it." In response to a question about the CM's residence—the 'sheesh mahal (glass palace)' as her party used to call it during Kejriwal's

KEY TAKEAWAYS

- Gupta has implied that hers will be a proactive, on-ground approach, marked by frequent engagement with Delhi's residents
- Stressed that her governing style would be one of teamwork, in close coordination with the Centre
- Has set uniform goals for resolving urgent civic matters like waste management, air pollution and Yamuna rejuvenation