KEY TAKEAWAYS

- Abraham Accords, Quad grouping are replacements for 'broken' global bodies
- In new tech like AI, Europe, US, Japan and India should unitedly take on China
- Elon Musk's DOGE is needed to put the US's fiscal house in order
- In sending back illegal immigrants, Trump is delivering a clear message to everyone

he said that with sufficient deterrence, it would not come to that. He added that joint military exercises conducted by the US and India are just such a deterrent against Chinese political and military interference in the Indo-Pacific as well as along its Himalayan land border with India. He also called for closer defence ties between India and the US.

In the same vein, Pompeo said that US efforts to ensure the continuance of all that the Chinese Communist Party disdains—"basic property rights, human dignity"—are deeply connected to the success of India. "From an American perspective, how do you think of China without thinking of India?" he asked.

Pompeo acknowledged that while Trump's tweets dominate headlines, they are not indicative of policy changes. On Trump's stand on tariffs, Pompeo said that the US president believes bilateral trade deficits are bad, and would like nations like India to get rid of the high tariff and non-tariff trade barriers to be good commercial partners.

Is the former secretary of state looking forward to be part of the Trump administration again? Pompeo said that he would have to say "yes" if he is called to serve the American people.

Pompeo's remarks provided a clear defence of Trump's policies, highlighting continuity and a focus on deal-making that benefits the US and its allies. ■
