Building a Legacy

AANCHAL JAIN
CEO, PMI ELECTRO MOBILITY

Aanchal Jain steers One of India's biggest new-age e-bus makers—PMI Electro Mobility—is led by a woman, one of a handful in the automobile industry. Aanchal Jain, who studied economics in the UK and US, returned to India after her father's family business pivoted from bus body builder to a bus manufacturer. "I lived in the US for almost 15 years and what got me back was PMI Electro because it was scaling up so fast," she tells BT. KKR-backed PMI Electro not only makes electric buses, it also operates and deploys these in several cities through its platform Allfleet.

AMEERA SHAH
PROMOTER & EXECUTIVE CHAIRPERSON, METROPOLIS HEALTHCARE

Ameera Shah led the company's expansion from a doctor-led practice into a diagnostics business operating across India and Africa. Over two decades, she has been involved in scaling the business, raising three rounds of private equity funding, and taking Metropolis public in 2019. Her remit has included business strategy, growth, and expanding the company's diagnostic network. Shah is also Co-founder and Chair of Women's Entrepreneurship at the Udaiti Foundation, which works to expand women's economic participation. She is a finance graduate from the University of Texas at Austin and an alumna of Harvard Business School.

PHOTO BY MANDAR DEODHAR

AMISHA VORA
CHAIRPERSON, PL CAPITAL GROUP

Starting off as VP—FII Sales in 2000, Amisha Vora has risen through the ranks at PL Capital over the past two and a half decades, becoming joint MD in 2006. She is now the Chairperson and Managing Director of rhe company. During that time, Vora has also been acquiring PL Capital shares and now holds a 96% stake in the Prabhudas Lilladher Group. She played a key role in the launch of PL Capital's investment banking business. When she took over the group's retail broking business in 2012, she spearheaded a makeover of how the business was done, led by technology and the quality of advisory services.

PHOTO BY HARDIK CHHABRA