Acknowledgments

A BOOK THAT spans four continents and three co-authors working in different cities incurs a lot of debts to those who supported this project. We thank the government officials and other informed observers from the private and public sectors in the BRICS countries and in the United States who spoke to us on background and wish to remain anonymous. In addition, we are grateful to the many economists and officials at international financial institutions and think tanks who devoted many hours to help us better understand the intricacies of the issues explored in this study, including Kausik Basu, Jin Zhongxia, Aleksei Mozhin, Andreas Bauer, Andrew Baukol, Simeon Djankov, David Dollar, Indermit Gill, Sergei Guriev, Birgit Hansl, Branko Milanovic, José Antonio Ocampo, Eswar Prasad, Markus Rodlauer, David Rosenblatt, and Sergei Shatalov. North American and Europe-based academics whom we thank for their help in understanding BRICS financial statecraft and the international political economy include Gregory Chin, Benjamin J. Cohen, Barbara Fritz, Eric Hershberg, Andrew Hurrell, Jonathan Kirshner, Laura Carsten Maurenbach, Daniel McDowell, Laurissa Muehlich, Mihaela Papa, Daniel C. Tirone, and Hongying Wang.

We are also grateful to many officials in Russia, members of the Russian Academy of Sciences, and other knowledgeable observers who were generous with their time and offered important insights, especially Ambassadors Vadim Lukov, Aleksandr Kramarenko, and Georgii Toloraia; Vladimir Mau, Andrei Kortunov, Leonid Grigoriev, Alexander Gabuev, Mikhail Golovnin, Igor Yurgens, Marina Larionova, Feodor Lukyanov, Robin Lewis, and Natalya Volchkova. We also thank scholars from or based in China, especially Ren Xiao, Wang Jisi, Wang Yong, and Zhu Feng; and those from or based in Japan, including Hyoung-kyu Chey, Masahiro Kawai, Eisuke Sakakibara, Toshiya Tsugami, and Tatsuya Yoshizaki.

Our indebtedness to Brazilians and Brazilianists who contributed their valuable time and critical insights encompasses Adriana E. Abdenur, the Worney Amoedo family, Luis Antonio Balduino, Renato C. Baumann, Luiz