49. Benn Steil, The Battle of Bretton Woods: John Maynard Keynes, Harry Dexter White, and the Making of A New World Order (Princeton, NJ: Princeton University Press, 2013). Given the greater importance of the IMF, the United States initially planned to lead it but had to switch with the Europeans at the last minute, when it was discovered that the designated candidate, Harry Dexter White, the U.S. chief negotiator at the Bretton Woods conference, was a Soviet agent.

50. Arvind Subramanian and Devesh Kapur, "Who Should Lead the World Bank?" Project Syndicate, February 17, 2012, www.project-syndicate.org.

51. Point 5 of the statement reads: "We believe that, if the Fund is to have credibility and legitimacy, its Managing Director should be selected after broad consultation with the membership. It should result in the most competent person being appointed as Managing Director, regardless of his or her nationality. We also believe that adequate representation of emerging market and developing members in the Fund's management is critical to its legitimacy and effectiveness." IMF Executive Directors, "Statement by the IMF Executive Directors Representing Brazil, Russia, India, China, and South Africa on the Selection Process for Appointing an IMF Managing Director," IMF, May 24, 2011, http://www.imf.org/external/np/sec/pr/2011/pr11195.htm.

52. Interfax, May 18, 2011. Marchenko's reputation was as a successful technocrat who favored creating balanced budgets, adhering to international financial standards, combating corruption, and diversifying the Kazakh economy. Sebastien Peyrouse, "The Kazakh Neopatrimonial Regime: Balancing Uncertainties Among the Family, Oligarchs, and Technocrats," in Kazakhstan in the Making: Legitimacy, Symbols, and Social Changes, ed. Marlene Laruelle (Lanham, MD: Lexington Books, 2016), 48.

53.Rossiyskaia Gazeta, May 25, 2011.

54. News conference with Medvedev, May 28, 2011, http://www.kremlin.ru; and Sergei Lavrov, interview, June 3, 2011, Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Russian Federation, http://www.mid.ru.

55. RIA Novosti, June 7, 2011.

56. Ren Xiao, "A Reform-Minded Status Quo Power? China, the G20, and Reform of the International Financial System," Third World Quarterly 36, no. 11 (2015): 2023–2043.

57. Tosovsky reportedly had the support of other countries, although Strauss-Kahn had the backing of the European Union, which included the Czech Republic. Vidya Ram, "Josef Tosovsky: Caught up in Controversy," Forbes.com, August 22, 2007.

58. In an interview with the Financial Times, Mozhin declared, "The whole process of selecting the IMF managing director is deeply flawed." He added, "We believe the IMF is facing a severe crisis of legitimacy and that if you want to make the IMF relevant to the needs of developing countries we must select the best candidate… . If the developing countries do not have the feeling that they are playing a role in the selection process then they will simply turn their backs on the IMF." Edward Luce, "Russia Says IMF Candidate Lacks Key Skills," Financial Times, August 25, 2007. Two years after his abrupt departure from the IMF in 2011 in the wake of scandal, Strauss-Kahn was appointed to the supervisory board of the Russia Regional Development Bank, owned by the oil producer OAO Rosneft.

59. Mirren Gidda, "The Trials of an IMF Powerplayer," Irish Examiner, January 23, 2016.

60. "Next IMF boss likely to come from outside Europe-deputy head," Reuters, July 25, 2015, http://www.reuters.com/article/imf-leader-idUSL5N10504H20150725.

61. Interview with José Antonio Ocampo, San Juan, Puerto Rico, May 2015.

62. Shawn Donnan, "Jim Yong Kim Heading for a Second Term as World Bank President," Financial Times, September 15, 2016.

63. It is true that for the first time, neither the head of the IMF nor the World Bank was a Caucasian male—something of a breakthrough.