93. Ibid.; Ian Bremmer and Cliff Kupchan, “Top Risks 2016,” Eurasia Group, 3; and Rachel Evans, “Russia Sanctions Accelerate Risk to Dollar Dominance,” Bloomberg Business, August 6, 2014.

94. “Russia to respond to possible disconnection from SWIFT—PM,” TASS, January 27, 2015.

95. Vladimir Putin, Interview with ITAR-TASS, July 15, 2014, http://en.kremlin.ru/events/president/news/46218.

96. Excerpts from transcript of the plenary session of the First Media Forum of Independent Regional and Local Media with Vladimir Putin, April 24, 2014, St. Petersburg, http://special.kremlin.ru/events/president/transcripts/20858.

97. Alexey Parshin, “Russia’s National Payments System: The Journey So Far,” Finance Digest, June 3, 2016; Charles Clover, “Western Sanctions ‘Pushing Russia Towards Closer ties with China,’” Financial Times, April 17, 2016.

98. Gabriel Wildau, “China Launch of Renminbi Payments System Reflects SWIFT Spying Concerns,” Financial Times, October 8, 2015.

99. Paul Golden, “China Looks Forward to Second Phase of CIPS,” Euromoney, September 8, 2016.

100. “BRICS May Set up Ratings Agency for Emerging Markets,” Economic Times Online, May 16, 2016; Kathrine Hille, “Russia and China Plan Own Rating Agency to Rival Western Players,” Financial Times, June 3, 2014. For a useful scholarly treatment, see Rawi Abdelal and Mark Blyth, “Just Who Put You in Charge? We Did: CRAs and the Politics of Ratings,” in Ranking the World, ed. Alexander Cooley and Jack Snyder (New York: Cambridge University Press, 2015), 39–59.

101. “IMF Governance,” Bretton Woods Project, February 8, 2016.

102. An assistant secretary of the Treasury for international affairs observed in 2006, “We came to the view a while ago that if we do not take action to recognize the growing role of emerging economies, the IMF will become less relevant and we will all be worse off.” Statement by the Hon. Clay Lowery, Temporary Alternate Governor of the Fund and the Bank for the United States, Boards of Governors, 2006 Annual Meetings of the IMF and World Bank Group, Singapore, Press Release No. 59, September 19–20, 2006.

103. Gregory T. Chin, “The BRICS-Led Development Bank: Purpose and Politics Beyond the G20,” Global Policy 5, no. 3 (2014): 368.

104. Otaviano Canuto, “Liquidity Glut, Infrastructure Finance Drought, and Development Banks,” Capital Finance International, September 19, 2014, http://cfi.co/africa/2014/09/liquidity-glut-infrastructure-finance-drought-and-development-banks/

105. Asian Development Bank (ADB), Infrastructure for a Seamless Asia (Tokyo: Asian Development Bank Institute, 2009).

106. Vivien Foster and Cecilia Briceño-Garmendia (eds.), Africa’s Infrastructure: A Time for Transformation (Washington, DC: World Bank Publications, 2010). These estimates vary based on their respective calculation assumptions. According to the recent estimates by the Division on Investment and Enterprise of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD), the infrastructure investment needs of the entire emerging market economies range from $1.6 to 2.5 trillion per year. James Zhan, “Investment, Infrastructure, and Financing the Sustainable Development Goals.” Workshop on Aid for Trade and Infrastructure: Financing the Gap, WTO, February 16, 2015.

107. Henry Laurence, “Japan and the New Financial Order in East Asia: From Competition to Cooperation,” in Debating the Global Financial Architecture, ed. Leslie E. Armijo (Albany, NY: SUNY Press, 2002), 214–235.