26. Randall L. Schweller and Xiaoyu Pu, "After Unipolarity: China's Visions of International Order in an Era of US Decline," International Security 36, no. 1 (2011): 41–72.

27. Xi Jinping's address at the conference marking the 60th anniversary of the Five Principles of Peaceful Coexistence, cited in Yang Jiemian, "China's "New Diplomacy Under the Xi Jinping Administration," China Quarterly of International Strategic Studies 1, no. 1 (2015): 7.

28. Shi Yinhong, "China's Complicated Foreign Policy," European Council on Foreign Relations, March 31, 2015; and Zhang Baohui, "Xi Jinping, 'Pragmatic' Offensive Realism and China's Rise," Global Asia 9, no. 2 (Summer 2014): 71–79. For context prior to Xi, see also Qian Qichen, Ten Episodes in China's Diplomacy (New York: HarperCollins, 2006), a translation of the former vice premier/foreign minister's Waijiao shiji [Ten Stories of a Diplomat] (Beijing: Shijie zhishi chubanshe, 2003).

29. For the difficulties that China is facing with its investment deals with Venezuela, see "China Rethinks Developing World Largesse as Deals Sour," Financial Times, October 13, 2016.

30. Gregory Chin, "China's Bold Economic Statecraft," Current History 114, no. 773 (2015): 220–221.

31. Shaun Breslin, "China and the Global Order: Signaling Threat or Friendship?" International Affairs 89, no. 3 (2013): 629.

32. Helleiner and Momani, "The Hidden History of China and the IMF"; Peter Ferdinand and Jue Wang, "China and the IMF: From Mimicry Towards Pragmatic International Institutional Pluralism," International Affairs 89, no. 4 (2013): 895–910.

33. Foot and Walter, China, the United States, and Global Order, 111, citing a speech by then-premier Wen Jiabao on May 17, 2005.

34. Breslin, "China and the Global Order," 631. See also "China's Development Finance," IDS Policy Briefing, Issue 92, April 2015, http://www.ids.ac.uk/publication/china-s-development-finance-ambition-impact-and-transparency.

35. Qin (cited in Cheng 2015, 366–367) lists three important conditions for cooperation among incumbent powers and emerging powers: (1) emerging powers must be given their due share of power in the reform of the international system, (2) the legitimate interests and demands of the emerging powers must be respected, and (3) the emerging powers' request for consultation on an equal basis must be met. Joseph Y. S. Cheng, "China's Approach to BRICS," Journal of Contemporary China 24, no. 92 (2015): 357–375.

36. China Institutes of Contemporary International Relations (CICIR), Strategic and Security Review, 2014/15, 68.

37. CICIR, Strategic and Security Review, 63. As discussed in Chap. 3, quota reform and RMB inclusion in the SDR were both finally achieved in fall 2015 after China and the BRICS engaged in proactive lobbying and introduced their outside options of the NDB and the AIIB, which came into existence in 2015.

38. Wang Jisi, "Study Projects Glittering US-China Economic Relations in 2022," China-US Focus, July 24, 2013, http://www.chinausfocus.com/finance-economy/study-projects-glittering-us-china-economic-relations-in-2022.

39. Kenneth Lieberthal and Wang Jisi, Addressing U.S.-China Strategic Distrust (Brookings Institution, Washington, DC, March 2012). See also Cui Liru, "Big Power Game/Cooperation in the Asia-Pacific," CIR 23, no. 2 (March/April 2013): 90–100.

40. Chien-peng Chung, China's Multilateral Co-operation in Asia and the Pacific: Institutionalizing Beijing's Good Neighbour Policy (London: Routledge, 2010), 16.

41. For the Chinese discussion on how the BRICS group has been considered in the context of the G20, see Cheng, "China's Approach to BRICS," 366.