domestic politics of, 152–154;
economic performance of, 28, 29, 31–32, 36, 153, 155;
financial statecraft of, 148;
foreign bond ownership in, 54;
foreign direct investment by, 44;
foreign policy of, 23, 149–152, 156;
global investment and, 38;
industrialization of, 172;
informal institutions in, 175;
institutional quality of, 174;
international financial institutions and, 148;
lacking historical ties to other BRICs, 2;
lending to the IMF, 152;
loans in, 50;
military spending in, 42;
motivations of, for BRICS participation, 148–157;
privatization in, 155;
public debt of, redefined, 148;
relations with China, 153–157, 231n265; RMB's role and, 152;
soft-balancing in, 151;
South-South cooperation and, 16, 23, 150–151, 156;
statements of, on BRICS financial statecraft, 152;
supporting Russia in resisting sanctions, 151;
underrepresented in global governance institutions, 74;
universalism of, 148;
Z-scores in, 50
Brazilian Central Bank, 154
Brazilian Economic and Social Development Bank, 95, 153, 154
Bremmer, Ian, 189n63, 209n93, 233n2
Breslin, Shaun, 184n9, 216n22, 216n31, 217n34, 218n57, 219n72, 220n82
Bresser-Pereira, Luiz Carlos, 172
Bretton Woods Conference, 113
Bretton Woods institutions, 3;
fixed exchange rate system, collapse of, 15;
history of, 14, 113;
leadership of, 82–83;
legitimacy of, 143;
not serving developing countries, 145;
steering groups in, 14. See also International Monetary Fund; World Bank
BRIC Index (Morgan Stanley Capital International), 185n17
Briceño-Garmendia, Cecilia, 210n106
BRICS (BRICs): acting separately, 105–106; AIIB and, 70;
ambitions of, for addressing global economic issues, 24;
analytical work by, 78–80;
averse to Western imposition, 116;
banking system development in, 49–50;
bargaining power of, 12, 80–81;
bargaining with the US and G7, 70, 108;