Bretton Woods institutions' reforms and, 107 (See also International Monetary Fund; World Bank);
buying IMF bonds, 81–82;
capability distribution within, 26, 112;
capital controls and, 86;
capitalism in, varieties of, 12;
capital markets in, 50;
as change agents, 108;
China's position in, 13, 19–20, 34, 111–112;
as a club, 5, 21–22, 70, 77, 109;
coevolution of, 16–17;
collaboration among, 3–5, 11, 70, 110, 111;
collective financial statecraft by, 12, 17–18, 23, 24 (See also collective financial statecraft);
common aversions and, 6–8, 106, 110; concerned about international monetary system, 63, 81, 135;
contributing to European rescue programs, 86;
cooperative actions of, assessment of, 107;
coordination games, logic of, 8;
corporate governance in, 175;
corruption in, 169 (See also corruption);
cost-benefit analysis for, of collective financial statecraft, 109–110;
as creditors, 81–82;
creating new financial institutions, 17;
creation of, 1, 17;
credit rating agency for, 92, 106;
credit rating institutions and, 72;
currencies of, 101–102 (See also renminbi; ruble);
currency swap agreements of, 104;
defense spending of, 24;
development bank for, 142;
diminishing US economic and financial power, 138;
dismissal of, in US academia, 28;
diversifying international relations, 25;
diversity of, 168–169;
domestic appeal of, 111;
domestic institutions in, 45–52, 56, 169, 170;
economic gaps among, 19;
economic performance of, 29–32, 72, 169, 177;
economic potential of, 32–33;
emergence of, 5, 16;
on Eurozone lending, 82;
external trade and, 52–54;
financial capabilities of, 26, 44, 92–100;
financial openness of, 52–54;
financial statecraft of, 4;
foreign direct investment by, 44–45;
foreign policy goals of, 67;
foreign reserves of, 7, 57, 179;
framework agreements for, 106;
free trade agreement for, 106;
future of, 23;