global current account surplus and, 56, 57;
global economic influence of, 36, 37, 58–59;
global financial centers in, 57–58;
global GDP of, 42;
global governance system and, 8–12;
global growth and, 28;
global power shift toward, 22;
governance of, 170–77;
G20, 11, 119;
and the IMF, 9, 11, 72–74, 82–85, 120;
importance of, in global financial markets, 58–59;
incentives of, for supporting collective action, 5–6;
India's participation in, 139, 140;
industrial tycoons in, 39;
informal rules and, 174–176;
infrastructure investments in, 93;
inside reforms and, 108;
institutional gains by, 23;
institutional quality of, 173, 174;
institutional reforms for, 36;
interest in, 2;
international assets and, 54–58;
lending in local currencies, 101;
long-term threat to, 169;
lopsidedness in, 19;
members' bad behavior and, 169;
middle-income trap in, 36, 118, 172;
military strength of, 41–42;
monetary capabilities of, 44;
motivations of, for collective financial statecraft, 109–112;
offensive financial statecraft by, 169;
opposing Russian sanctions, 23, 71, 88, 90–92;
origins of, 125–126;
outdistancing economic performance of the G7, 32;
outside options and, 70, 80, 92, 108;
parallel financial institutions for, 19;
payment systems, parallel structures for, 72;
persuasion by, 80;
power asymmetry in, 18, 107, 120, 178–179;
predictions about, 183–84n3;
protecting against US shocks, 45;
pursuing reforms of Bretton Woods institutions, 72, 76–87;
on quantitative easing, 87;
regional benefits for, of collaboration, 111;
regional power and, 7;
remaining neutral, 105;
reserve currencies for, 61;
reserves for, 101;
resources of, 65;
as Rising (Great) Powers Club, 125, 127;