

Q: The global slowdown in the luxury segment is yet to reverse. How does that impact your plans?

In times that are complex, geographically, economically, technologically, entrepreneurs and creators have a special responsibility. We must continue to invest, renovate, take risks, because creation is optimism in action. Both India and France believe that culture and companies are forces for sovereignty and progress, and building, investing, even in complex and uncertain times, is not only an economic act, but an act of confidence.

In a world that sometimes feels fragmented, initiatives like this matter more than ever. At Galeries Lafayette, tradition meets innovation. Luxury becomes more than a product. It becomes an emotion. We are proud to bring together iconic French maisons and talented Indian designers in a space that reflects both heritage and modernity. Since its inception in 1894, Galeries Lafayette has been a stage for fashion, arts and design from Paris, to Shanghai, Jakarta, and now Mumbai. Our mission has remained the same: Celebrate creativity, create excellence, and to make culture accessible.

France and India are two great nations bound by history, culture, and a common independence, creativity, and excellence.

- Nicolas Houze, Executive Chairman of Galeries Lafayette Group (Left); Sathyajit R., CEO International Brands, Aditya Birla Fashion Retail Limited