

Historic British carmakers Rolls-Royce and Range Rover have their Besopke and SV Bespoke programmes respectively, characterised by British restraint and subtle elegance (Left and below).

While there's no dearth of drivers indulging in the purchase of luxury vehicles, there is s small, swish set that choose to not buy a car 'off the rack'. Instead, they opt for a bespoke car, splurging on personalising every single aspect of their drive experience - from the bespoke headliner of a Rolls-Royce Phantom to the blended colour of a Porsche, the stitches on a Lamborghini steering wheel and your monogram on the headrest of a Maserati, the options are endless. Here's a look at the bespoke services offered by some of our favourite automotive purveyors.

Rolls-Royce Bespoke

There are a staggering 44,000 exterior colours to choose from when you are commissioning your very own Rolls-Royce through its Bespoke service. For those who choose to leave their personalised stamp on their motorcar, colour options can be 'created' to suit the most outlandish of requests—the colour of your dog's fur, matching the colour of your daughter's eyes. Or maybe the owner's initials hand stitched onto the headrest. One of our favourite bespoke talking points: The signature Starlight Headliner, incorporating embroidery, sculpture and marquetry, as well as thousands of hand-placed stitches. All this bespoke magic takes place in Goodwood, United Kingdom, at Home of Rolls-Royce where handcrafted details are painstakingly etched onto each bespoke car. In addition to the Bespoke service, there is also Rolls-Royce Private Office, which is in charge of the ultra-specialised bespoke commissions. There are five Private Offices around the world—UK, Dubai, Shanghai, New York and Seoul. Each of these offices have a dedicated design team that handholds the customer through the entire process. Indian customers can, in principle, visit the regional Private Office in Seoul, or even Dubai.
