

Range Rover SV Bespoke

For those Range Rover fans who'd like to take their off-roader one notch higher, there's always the option of the manufacturer's SV Bespoke programme. Short for 'special vehicles' unit, the SV Bespoke programme lets you choose and personalise myriad details down to the colour palette of the exteriors, the texture of the interior trims as well as the different materials used as trims, seat covers and surfaces. An SV model cannot be ordered at a store, as you would expect and we're talking about a whopping 1.6 million customisation options. Once the details are finalised, the car is made in the SV unit in the UK and shipped to India. We recently drove a bespoke Range Rover SV and some of the unapologetic indulgences include a built-in tray table, fridge, first-class recliner seat and special leather on the seats and trims. British luxury at its best!

Lamborghini Ad Personam

As if buying a Lamborghini wasn't indulgence enough, you can take it one notch higher with the Italian carmaker's Ad Personam bespoke offering. Think a seat logo done entirely by hand stitching, the owner's monogram dotting

- Lamborghini's Ad Personam customers can enjoy a record 348 specially created colour options (Above) Manufaktur programme (Right)