▼ GLASSHOUSE

A PROJECT DEAR TO YOGI

With all the alarm over excessive mobile phone use and screen exposure among children, the Yogi Adityanath government has decided it's time for a pushback. The state's remedy—get students back to reading, which would also improve their falling language and comprehension skills. Newspaper reading will henceforth be an integral part of the learning process in 150,000 government-run primary and secondary schools, with the administration supplying the dailies regularly. The government is also reviving the DEAR—Drop Everything And Read—campaign, under which students and teachers will spend dedicated time every week reading books of their choice. Students who read the most books will be rewarded, with the top reader in each school named 'Champion Reader of the Year'. In Uttar Pradesh, the battle against the mobile screen may now begin with the morning newspaper.

Illustrations by SIDDHANT JUMDE

▼ PATNA'S BUNGALOW WARS

RABRI DIGS IN

The Bihar government wants former chief minister Rabri Devi to vacate 10, Circular Road, the government bungalow she has been staying in since 2006. But Rabri, wife of Rashtriya Janata Dal founder Lalu Prasad, is in no mood to shift, although another house has been allotted to her. On May 30, after the latest eviction notice, she dared Bihar CM Samrat Choudhary to move her out by force. For Rabri, who is also the leader of the Opposition in the Bihar Legislative Council, the bungalow is more than just an address; it has borne witness to all the successes and upheavals in RJD politics for two decades. With police barricades in place and neither side showing signs of backing down, 10, Circular Road is now becoming a political flashpoint.

