FINNLOUGH LUXURY HIDEAWAY, FERMANAGH, IRELAND

Nestled on a serene headland overlooking the emerald expanse of Lough Erne, Finn Lough feels like a well-kept secret waiting to be unveiled. Just a whisker away from the Donegal border, this family-run haven masterfully blends nature and luxury into a seamless retreat. Picture this: bubble domes with 360 degree views of the night sky, stately four poster beds, decadent en suite baths, and evenings under the stars that seem almost other-worldly. And then there's the extraordinary food. Meals here are as memorable as the setting, farm-to-table feasts of seasonal, locally-sourced produce; whether it's a five course tasting menu in the Forest Barn or a hearty Irish breakfast to fuel outdoor adventures. In the charming Forest Barn, Irish cuisine is reimagined, yet remains refreshingly true to its roots. The locally-sourced, seasonal ingredients are passionate protagonists of their own narrative, where each dish offered a delicate balance of tradition and ingenuity. My vegetarian tasting menu was a revelation, an artful parade of textures and flavours that reminded me why simple food, handled with care, is anything but ordinary. For others, dishes like succulent Donegal lamb and the impossibly fresh seafood carried a tribute to the land and water in each bite. Paired with a glass of Boatyard Distillery gin or a local craft cider, and you have a sensory escape that lingers long after the last sip. Finn Lough doesn't just let you escape; it envelops you in a world where serenity, taste, and wonder collide.
