NH COLLECTION TORINO SANTO STEFANO, TURIN, ITALY

Tucked away in Turin's Quadrilatero Romano, a district that feels like it was built for daydreams, 'NH Santo Stefano' is no ordinary spot. Sure, it's technically a hotel. But staying here feels more like stepping into a living, breathing history book, one sprinkled with good food. Let's start with the staircase. Just like a ribbon unwinding in mid air, it twists and turns, leading to breathtaking views. Picture the rugged Alps sparkling in the distance, Roman ruins down below, and Turin's baroque skyline stretching out in effortless elegance. Honestly, you could sit there for hours, but not so fast, because food beckons. The breakfast buffet? It's what mornings were made for. Bright, colourful fruits, soft pastries, and piping hot dishes that hug you like a warm Italian granny. Then there's 'La Pista Bistrot'. Oh, 'La Pista'. This is where Piedmontese cuisine shakes things up with old school recipes getting a modern makeover. Think bold game meats that feel like they were just brought in by a hunter, delicate pasta with heart and heritage, and desserts that demand your full attention. The star of the show? Chef Evi Polliotto's famous 'Monviso cake'; made with local hazelnuts, it's so good you'll want to book your next trip to Turin just for another slice. At Santo Stefano, food doesn't just feed you, it stays with you.
